

Training at Eaves

Exiting Prostitution Good Practice

Our two day Exiting Prostitution Good Practice workshop is accredited by the Open College Network London at Level 2 (2 Credits) and is CPD accredited. This training is drawn from our more than 10 years' experience of delivering specialist services to women involved in prostitution, and our academic research on women's support needs when exiting from prostitution.

What you'll learn

- Mainstream perceptions of prostitution, and the reality for our service users based on our research and frontline experience.
- The law in the UK and internationally around prostitution.
- The roles of different agencies in supporting women involved in prostitution.
- How to develop effective policies and strategies around prostitution.
- Practical assessment tools to use with service users, and frontline good practice.
- An overview of trafficking indicators and how to support victims of trafficking.

Bespoke training

We can also offer bespoke training of any length in-house at your organisation. We can tailor this training to your organisation's priorities and your staff members' learning needs.

Who should attend

Anyone with a responsibility to provide support, advice or services to vulnerable women, or to develop policies and strategies around prostitution which are beneficial to the whole community.

Our trainers

Our training is delivered by a team of trainers who have expertise both in providing direct support to women exiting from prostitution, and in research and policy.

About Eaves

Eaves is a London based charity established in 1977, dedicated to giving a voice to the most excluded women in society and providing direct, innovative services to support and empower women to help themselves. We also carry out research, advocacy and campaigning to prevent all forms of violence against women. We've been providing specialist services to women involved in prostitution for over 10 years.

“One of the best training courses I have been on in twenty years. Thank you.”
